UN Meta-Governance for Partnerships

Questions:

1. How would you describe the role of [respondent's organisation] for managing multi-stakeholder partnerships for sustainable development?
  - a. Is [respondent's organisation] focusing more on enabling partnerships, on ensuring effectiveness, or on both?
  - b. Is there a central hub for partnerships in the UN System, and is UNOP this hub?
2. What is needed to make partnerships more effective tools in the post 2015 agenda? And which role can [respondent's organisation] play in this regard?
  - 3a) Is there a need for an improved enabling environment for partnerships? And if so, how should it look like?
  - 3b) Should partnerships be more closely monitored and reviewed? And if so, who could do this and how?
3. [UN Agency] has guidelines for monitoring and reviewing the partnerships it funds. Are these rules a model for other partnerships in the UN System?
  - a. How does [UN Agency] monitoring compare to monitoring mechanisms in other UN institutions dealing with partnerships?
4. Apart from [respondent's organisation], several other institutions are dealing with partnerships. How would you describe the relationship with these institutions that are managing partnerships, and how do their roles differ from those of UNOP?
  - a. Global Compact?
  - b. How did [respondent's organisation] and [UN Agency] distinguish their roles vis-à-vis partnerships?
5. In the proposal for a UN Partnership Facility by the Secretary General, [respondent's organisation] would have become an integral part of this new institution. Do you think that may have translated into more effective governance of partnerships?
  - a. How would that have affected the relationship with, e.g. [UN Agency], as both may have been united under one umbrella?
